

2/
If the present's much too boring, then the future's way too late.
For all the outcomes we've sanctioned all begin this moment today.

So don't be quiet
if all you know is crying out, waiting for an outcome
or direction south.

Flying home for summer,
or never looking back.
Are we better off like this?

Be sure the flowers faded
and the scents bled dry, after stolen kisses
replayed one too many times.
If you've never known a reason why then why do your best pretending, if you are not blind?

For every answer begets a question and this brings up many things:
if one recreated a situation
does one eliminate anything?
And why are you still standing there if the only words you'll ever hear will never be mine?

So, write down your regrets
on every page.

Lick the stamps, to send me your loneliness mixed with rage

→